Anyone else?

I just got a call that my transmission is shot at 61,000. UNREAL!

I personally want the world to know how I have suffered with my Honda. I have a 2001 Honda Odyssey and I have just had my transmission replaced in my Odyssey for the 4th time. Each time it has happened I have had to fight with Honda. And now, Honda has refused to pay for my rental. I am out of pocket over $400 for the rental I had to get while waiting for my new transmission. They leave you to feel as though it is your responsibility. It would have been nice for Honda to own up to their own problems they are having with their transmissions and offer me some sort of customer satisfaction by the very least paying for my rental. When you buy a new car you expect that it will at least run a little while without a problem. And you definitely don't expect the transmission to go out in a year. Honda should look at the big picture....if I am happy with my car I will tell other people. And in the first year before this happened I had referred 3 people to buy a Honda Odyssey, which I now regret. My story now however has changed. I tell everyone I know not to deal with Honda. And that stems from how Honda has dealt with me. At this point, my only option is to get the word out. I had my signs and placed them in my window to let everyone know that I pass...DO NOT BUY A HONDA. This is the least I can do to try and prevent others from going through the pain that I have. I now drive in fear...every time the car jerks a little I think it is happening again. Some might say why don't you sell it. Why? Because knowing what I know about this car....I would not be able to live with myself passing on such a problem to someone else. Honda should take this defected car back. That would be a big step in the right direction for Honda to do the right thing!

I have been having transmission problems and am seeing a trend to others having sim problems. The dealer quoted $8000 new or $3327 for used. I don't think we should be having transmission problems on a car that is 3 years old. Anyone else having problem I am hoping to get response that I can send to Honda's customer relations department Please submit if problems

I just received the same indicator for a 2000 Odyssey with 55,000 miles. Replacing the entire transmission, and was told Honda has extended the trans warranty to 100,000 miles. The nhtsa.gov site has numerous similar complaints.

My 2000 Odyssey is likewise getting a new transmission at 70,000 miles. At the same time I'm having the dealer smog the van for the first time. They've had the van over 4 days and the only news I have is that it is now a gross polluter and still won't pass. Personally, I no longer want the car. Does anyone know of options to pursue?

I to have a 2000 Honda odyssey. I have been through 4 transmissions, the last was replaced in November of 2003. Eight months and 15,000 miles later, you guessed it, I need another transmission. This will be #5! I have read many complaints but nothing similar to my story. I am wondering if this dealership has ever really done the work. I called American Honda to complain, and before they come see what the real problem is why this is happening over and over, they say they will only pay for half of the transmission and half labor. The dealer says they will not give me a warranty on the w or parts this time. This is crazy! I have also had many of the major parts replaced, too many to name. This is not because of terrible driving or not caring for the car. I have paid for all of Hondas pricey service and maintenance requirements and I have always taken very good care the car. At this point, because of all the major repairs I couldn't give the car away, much less sell it. I feel a class action lawsuit should be filed to force American Honda to look into this problem and develop a transmission that last as long any other major car manufacturer transmission would last. They know they have a problem, only to recall this part and replace it with the same faulty part. If you or any else is interested, I have the name of a lawfirm who has been successful in beating American Honda in a different class action lawsuit. Please reply to this message. Thank

Hi [REDACTED]

May I ask what exactly was going on with your car besides the slipping?
I have a 1998 LX accord 122,000 miles and I am having to warm up my car for 30 minutes so that it will not jump when I put it into drive or reverse, start to accelerate and when I come to a complete stop. Also I have noticed the last couple months my transmission is slipping off and on more and more often now. and also I have noticed a slight burning smell under the hood. I did take it in and they said I need a new transmission.

My problem is probably much worse then yours was but I just wish I had "engine or pollution control related" problems instead.

Thanks,
Erica [REDACTED]

I had the same problems you describe on my 98 EX V6. It will eventually get to the point where the car is undrivable. Wound up having to get the transmission rebuilt to the tune of ~$3000. I complained to Honda, but they told me I needed to "take responsibility for my own vehicle." All we can really do is make sure we never buy another Honda, and to spread the word to family and friends.

To try and answer your other question, I've heard adding new trans. fluid to old fluid can cause a lot of damage. That's all I can really add to that.

HI, PEOPLE THIS IS NOT A ONE OR TWO PERSON PROBLEM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ARE TAKING THE WORSE RIDE THAT YOU CAN EVER PAY FOR AT THE TUNE OF 21,000 DOLLARS OUT OF OUR OWN POCKETS CALL THIS NUMBER TO FILE A COMPLAINT 1888-327-4236 US DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION NATIONAL HIGHWAY SAFETY OF DEFECTS INVESTIGATION WASHINGTON DC 20590 FAX 202-366-7882 THE MORE YOU CALL AND THEY WILL CALL FOR A RECALL NOT LETTING HONDA OF AMERICA ONLY EXTEND THE COVERAGE 7YRS/100,000 MILES I HAVE A 1999 HONDA ODESSEY THAT HAS THE TRANSMISSION PROBLEM 111932 MILES ON IT (I WAS TOLD BY AMERICAN HONDA THAT BECAUSE THE DEALER DIDN'T NOTE THAT THERE WAS SOME SLIPAGE IN THE GEAR BEFORE 100,007 MILES THAT THEY CAN'T DO ANYTHING FOR ME. I bought a brand new Accord EX V6 on June 17 2004.
From the very first ride it has a transmission click/noise when I changing from "reverse to drive".
Brought to the dealer - they put in writing, that this is normal for this kind of design!!!
The service people were not friendly - shame on Honda and very sad news for me - owner of 3 Honda's Accord 94, 95 and now 2004 - SHIT!
Thank you for your time and efforts.

we have a 1998 honda accord that went to leaking fluid bad at 60,000 We took it in an they put seals in it for 300.00 now at 66,000 it is leaking again and they are telling us needs a new transmission for 4500 plus labor. Is anyone else having accord transmissi problems?

I have a 98 Accord with over 93,000 miles and the transmission has just started to slip on acceleration and the engine check light has come on. I do not have a clear service record on the car, as in, I don't know when or if the fluid was changed in the distant pa

I do know this, the last time I was at the deal with the check engine light on, 2 of the 3 faults they found were for transmission; this was before any slipping was occurring. The specifically recommended that I NOT replace the fluid. They said that flushing and fillin could actually hasten bigger problems. I have to scramble to find my receipts on this ca to be ready for a meeting with my dealer service manager tomorrow for a personal tes drive. I will report back.

Well, the service manager test drove the car with me this morning and diagnosed the problem as engine or pollution control related. He then plugged the car into his portabl diagnosis unit and he appears to be correct. I am having it serviced on Thursday and w report back for certain if I have added false fuel to this fire.

Well, after a complete tune up, the symptoms are gone and I stand corrected.

I did mention the transmission to the service team again and I was again told not to change the fluid. I was told that detergents in the new fluid after a change can dislodge accumulated dirt, which can then go on to cause problems. Is it possible that the problems occurring on this board are due to following the maintenance schedule? Are there a good number of people out there with transmission problems who haven't changed the fluid?

Anyone else?

I just got a call that my transmission is shot at 61,000. UNREAL!

I'm on trans # 2. First one went out at 25K miles. 2nd just went out at 67K miles and is in the shop now. They say that they need to replace the "shift solenoids" first as this is "standard procedure." He said that they'll likely replace the trans either way. The service tech whispered to me that this is a HUGE problem and that all '99 to '02 Odyssey transmissions are defective. Even the replacements will likely go bad within 20K to 40K miles he says. So much for Honda reliability. Hello Sienna!

Hi, I have a 2002 that has been fine until about 40k miles. It started to not shift the same. Took it to the dealer and they said nothing is wrong. It has gotten worse and now does not go shift correctly between 2nd and 3rd. Took it back to the dealer and they now say they have to change the transmission. Cost is $5200. I said that was crazy. They said to call Honda 800 and I did. Gave the rep all info about the car. I have not heard anything yet and it's been 3 days. What did you have to do to get them to pay for the change?

IS EVERYONE AWARE THAT ALL 1999 AND SOME 2000 MODEL ODYSSEY VANS HAVE A TRANSMISSION DEFECT? SEE HONDA SERVICE BULLETIN # 00-065. ~~THEY ARE NOT~~ EFFECTING A RECALL, THEY ARE WAITING FOR YOU TO FIND IT, AND THEN THEY WILL REPLACE IT WITH A REPAIRED "USED" TRANSMISSION. ASK YOUR DEALER TO SEE TH SERVICE BULLETIN AND AND READ WHAT IT SAYS ABOUT REPLACEMENT.

I have a 2001 Odyssey EX with 4100 miles. I started it up the other day and the CHEC ENGINE and TCS lights were on. I drive down the road, pulled over, and turned it off. After about a minute I restarted it. The CHECK ENGINE light came on immediately, the TCS light came on about a minute later. I'm takinging in to the dealer Friday.

We had this problem with our 99 Odyssey Van. Two months ago, we had the same indicators and the local dealer said the computer advised replacement of the EGA valve which was done. No more problems until these same indicators came on while we were the first day of a 10 day trip, so we limped into the nearest dealer. It took them an hour to declare that we needed a new transmission. Coincidentally, the power sliding door developed a problem at the same time. We felt that we had a lemon and were unable to wait 4 days for the transmission to be repaired. So, we traded for an 03 Odyssey. Now we wonder if we made a wise decision! I called Honda Customer Relations today, and they know about our situation. The person I talked to was most cold and unsympathetic. She even denied that there was a problem with the 99 Odyssey in regards to the transmission issue. I don't think they care about their customers AT ALL!

Subject : Check Engine and TCS light Author : Bob Wesolowski Date : 7/22/2003 10:03:40 AM

Same problem as everyone else with my Odyssey EX (80,000 miles). First the check engine light then the TCS light. My local dealer could not explain the problem. "Just one of those things", he said. I then paid $600 bucks to replace solenoids and flush the transmission. (It was prescribed in the Honda service manual). Two days later the light came back on. Also took the car to another Honda dealer for a second opinion. Both dealers said they were unaware of any problems with Odysseys.

MEDIA RELEASECANADIAN MOTOR VEHICLE ARBITRATION PLAN

Canada's largest consumer dispute resolution program with more than 1.4 million vehicles eligible annually

In 2002, Canada's vehicle manufacturers bought back 100 vehicles for a total of $2,984,728 at an average of $29,847.28 per vehicle.

MEDIA RELEASECANADIAN MOTOR VEHICLE ARBITRATION PLAN*2002 ANNUAL REPORT

FOR RELEASE ON OR AFTER SEPTEMBER 4, 2002

Nine years in operation and getting stronger, CAMVAP Chair, Jim Savary reports "the program handled 893 cases in 2002. From start to finish, CAMVAP cases took an average of 71.9 days to complete from the time the consumer's application was received through to the arbitrator's award being sent to the consumer and to the manufacturer".

Savary noted "cases that do not require a technical inspection of the vehicle were completed on average in 53 days and those that required an independent technical inspection took an average of 89 days".

CAMVAP's seven provincial administrators received record customer satisfaction again for the service provided to consumers. 96% of consumers who come to the program rated the administrators as excellent or very good for being courteous and 94% ranked them similarly for being professional. Larry Johnson, CAMVAP's first Chair, noted that "CAMVAP pays very close attention to the results of the independent survey results and the consumer's comments. All consumers who are eligible for the program are telephone surveyed by MarkTrend Research/Synovate from Vancouver."

Savary noted that "when all case outcomes are considered, decisions favoured consumers in 61% of CAMVAP cases".

http://www.camvap.ca/eng/media/media_4.htm

7/6/04

Vehicle manufacturers were ordered to buy-back a record 100 vehicles for a total of $2,084,728 at an average of $20,847.28 per vehicle. The 2002 vehicle average is up $3,739.33 from the previous year.

Arbitrators ordered 34 reimbursement to consumers for repairs that they had previously paid for totalling $38,678.37. Payments for out of pocket expenses came to $3,729.09. Repairs to consumers' vehicles at the manufacturer's expense were ordered in 123 cases.

Savary pointed out that "Results for the cases that go to arbitration, including the manufacturer, year, model, reason for arbitration and the result are posted on CAMVAP's Internet site at www.camvap.ca."

Of consumers who settled before the hearing or at the hearing, 84% rated CAMVAP as excellent or very good.

Of consumers who were eligible, but didn't file, 85% rated the program excellent or very good, while 65% of those who went fully through the arbitration process rated the program as excellent or very good.

CAMVAP assists consumers in resolving disputes about manufacturer's defects with their vehicle or about how the manufacturer is implementing the new vehicle warranty.

Vehicles from the current plus 4 model years (1999 until September 30, 2003 and 2000 thereafter) that have travelled less than 160,000 kilometres are eligible.

The vehicle may have been purchased or leased and acquired either as new or used vehicles. CAMVAP strives to have the consumer through the process within 70 days.

Consumers can contact CAMVAP through the internet at www.camvap.ca or toll-free at 1-800-207-0686.

The chart below lists the summary information for each case arbitrated under the Agreement for Arbitration during 2002. It is important to view the case information in its proper context. In any given year, there are more than four million vehicles eligible for the program. CAMVAP handled 693 cases in 2002. This low number of cases is indicative of the quality of today's motor vehicles.

Put in perspective, the number of arbitrated cases is less than 1/100th of one percent of all eligible vehicles, and if one looks at the inquiries to the program, they represent only 2/10ths of one percent of all eligible vehicles.

Therefore, the data has no statistical validity whatsoever, and should not be construed to be making any statement, whether positive or negative, about the quality or reliability of any model, or the products, in general, of any manufacturer.

By the time a dispute between a consumer and a manufacturer reaches CAMVAP, the manufacturer believes that it has done everything in its power to address the consumer's complaint. From the consumer's perspective, the manufacturer's position or actions simply falls short of their expectations. CAMVAP allows both the consumer and the manufacturer the opportunity to resolve the issue in front of an independent arbitrator without the cost and delay that often accompanies court action.

The chart below shows the manufacturer's name, the model year and the model of each vehicle that was the subject of CAMVAP arbitration. Complaints are classified into nine different classifications. More information on these classifications can be found in the annual report. In some cases, the chart will show multiple complaint classifications. The award section sets out the result of the hearing.

CAMVAP arbitrators can make one or more of the following type of awards.

- Repairs - the manufacturer is required to repair the consumer's vehicle at its expense; reimburse the consumer for repairs that have already been paid for by the consumer;
- Buyback - the manufacturer is required to repurchase the consumer's automobile in accordance with the formula set out in the CAMVAP Agreement for Arbitration;
- Reimburse Repairs - the manufacturer is required to pay the consumer for the cost of repairs that have already been done to the vehicle at the consumer's expense;
- Out of Pocket Expense - the manufacturer is required to pay the consumer for up to $500 out of pocket expenses for taxes, towing, accommodation or diagnostic testing;
- Other Consent Award - the consumer and the manufacturer agreed "on consent" to a solution that is not contained within the Agreement for Arbitration. The arbitrator has made the agreement between the parties the award;
- No Liability - the consumer's case did not prevail and there is no liability or responsibility on behalf of the manufacturer for the problems that were arbitrated;
- No Jurisdiction - the arbitrator has found through the evidence and information at a hearing that he or she does not have the jurisdiction or authority to hear the matter brought forward by the consumer.

Subject : HONDA ODYSSEY TRANSMISSION PROBLEMS Author : JOHN WEST Date : 7/26/2001 8:26:54 PM

IS EVERYONE AWARE THAT ALL 1999 AND SOME 2000 MODEL ODYSSEY VANS HAVE A TRANSMISSION DEFECT? SEE HONDA SERVICE BULLETIN # 00-065. THEY ARE NOT EFFECTING A RECALL, THEY ARE WAITING FOR YOU TO FIND IT, AND THEN THEY WILL REPLACE IT WITH A REPAIRED "USED" TRANSMISSION. ASK YOUR DEALER TO SEE THE SERVICE BULLETIN AND READ WHAT IT SAYS ABOUT REPLACEMENT.

I have money down on a 2002 LX. I haven't heard anything bad about the ody but I'm guessing you are not pleased. I will definitely ask about the tranny. Thanx

Well it happened in my 2002 EX-L RES. Not even two months old and 3000 miles and suddenly gave violent jerks and the engine malfunction light came on. Dealer kept it w him for full 30 days and I got it back with a replaced transmission. Can I file a lemon claim?

I have a 01 model ex 7320 miles and my check engine light and my TCS light keeps coming on. The dealer doesn't know how to fix it, 3 tries so far, 2 within the last week. Does anyone have any electrical problems such as this?

I have a 2001 Odyssey EX with 4100 miles. I started it up the other day and the CHECK ENGINE and TCS lights were on. I drive down the road, pulled over, and turned it off. After about a minute I restarted it. The CHECK ENGINE light came on immediately, the TCS light came on about a minute later. I'm taking in to the dealer Friday.

We had this problem with our 99 Odyssey Van. Two months ago, we had the same indicators and the local dealer said the computer advised replacement of the EGA valve which was done. No more problems until these same indicators came on while we were the first day of a 10 day trip, so we limped into the nearest dealer. It took them an hour to declare that we needed a new transmission. Coincidentally, the power sliding door developed a problem at the same time. We felt that we had a lemon and were unable to wait 4 days for the transmission to be repaired. So, we traded for an 03 Odyssey. Now we wonder if we made a wise decision! I called Honda Customer Relations today, and let them know about our situation. The person I talked to was most cold and unsympathetic. She even denied that there was a problem with the 99 Odyssey in regards to the transmission issue. I don't think they care about their customers AT ALL!

Same problem as everyone else with my Odyssey EX (80,000 miles). First the check engine light then the TCS light. My local dealer could not explain the problem. "Just one of those things", he said. I then paid $600 bucks to replace solenoids and flush the transmission. (It was prescribed in the Honda service manual). Two days later the light came back on. Also took the car to another Honda dealer for a second opinion. Both dealers said they were unaware of any problems with Odysseys.

Things may not be much better with Honda's 2002 transmissions. I have a 2002 Odyssey with 2944 miles on it. During my first oil change the technician discovered a transmission fluid leak (not a dealer tech). I took the vehicle back to the dealer who in turn "discovered" a shift shaft seal problem.

American Honda was contacted and a case number assigned. I asked if Honda had a history with Odyssey transmission problems? Their reply was NO. I

I would be very interested in hearing from other owners of 2002 models with transmission related problems.

Subject : HONDA ODYSSEY TRANSMISSION PROBLEMS Author : steve miller Date : 10/9/2002 6:34:50 PM

It is not only Odyssey transmissions. I have had a problem with my 1998 Honda Accord transmission. Honda finally agreed to pay part of the cost of repair, but I still had to pay 1400 dollars. USA Today had an article about Honda transmissions having problems. Because of the negative publicity, Honda agreed to extend some warranties and reimburse some people who had paid to have their cars repaired; however, these concessions only pertained to 2000 and 2001 models. Honda remains unwilling to acknowledge the problems on 1998 and 1999 models. I would like to hear from anyone who has had a problem with 1998 or 1999 Accord transmissions who might like to join together to encourage Honda to admit that they had inherent transmission problems and assume responsibility for reimbursing anyone who has had to pay to have these transmissions replaced.

I had to replace trans and cat conver at 36,000 mi. Dealer covered. Now "new" replacement trans shot at 88,000 mi and dealer says warranty only good to 80,000. What good is replacing defective design part with same reconditioned defective part? I
