I have a Hyndai Tiburon 2003 GTV6 that I bought brand new in Lexington, Kentucky. and I have seen a lot of complaints online about the clutch going out before 30k miles, or even sometimes before 10k miles.

Is there any information I can see that can substantiate this because many people are having to pay out 1600-2000 dollars to get it repaired because most dealerships say it is normal wear and tear and not under warrenty.

This is not an isolated incident, many people have had the same complaints and think it is a defective part manufactred by Hyndai. I feel it is their responsibility to make a quality product on a sports car that does not wear out before the vehicle even gets to 50k miles, it is ridiculous so many are having problems prior to 30k miles. Have their been other complaints of this nature and if so how were they handled. Any info would be appreciated. Thank you for your time.

Sincerly,
