Dear Sir or Madam:

Could you please provide me with status of the review of the 2004 Lexus ES 330 acceleration delay? In case I am not referring to the exact classification the problem when you slow down and almost stop and then try to accelerate into traffic you get a approximate 1.5 second delay before the car accelerates which in talking with other owners as well as myself consider it to be a serious safety factor.

I have spoken to our local dealerships service department and originally said it was just a carburetion adjustment when we bought the vehicle but have since said they are aware of the problem at Lexus but have no resolution at this time.

Thanks for your consideration. If you should have any additional questions or comments please do not hesitate in calling me at
