Subject: Dodge Stratus

I would like to know what does it take for a recall to happen on vehicles have a 2001 Dodge Stratus with 83,000 on it and I have had the oil pump just replaced and they found sludge from top end to bottom worst they have ever seen. I now have an engine knock and can't driver my car. I have found out lately on line that a lot of people are having the same problems with the 2.7 liter Dodge engines. I have also found out that they have made changes to the new ones, is this due to all of the problems with the oil pick up tube that they changed. Any help would be great and I can forward it to others that I have been in contact with who have the same problem.

Thank You,
