Subject: Recall on Fuelrail

I have a question regarding the fuelrail recall. I had mine replaced and now I have had nothing but problems with my car and fuel problems. My fuel pump went out, and I had it towed (this is the fourth or fifth time) my mechanic called and he also found a leak in the injector o-rings. He called Dodge Dealer and they can't even look at it for 3 days and said they might not even fix the problem at no charge. My car was not doing this until they fixed the fuelrail leak. Is this something involved in the recall? All of these problems I've been having are all in 1 month's time. I have been very much inconvenienced. This is my only car. Please reply what should I do about this? I have a 1993 Dodge Intrepid. Thank you for your time.
