Dear [REDACTED]

The Office of Defects Investigation received your request to delete the report you provide on August 22, 2005, which you submitted via the National Highway Traffic Safety Administrations (NHTSA) Internet web site.

NHTSA is the Federal agency responsible for improving safety on our Nation's highways. We are authorized to order manufacturers to recall and repair vehicles or items of motor vehicle equipment when our investigations indicate that they contain serious safety defects in their design, construction, or performance. We also monitor the adequacy of manufacturers' recall campaigns. In order for the agency to initiate an investigation, we look carefully at the body of consumer complaints and other available data to determine whether a defect may exist. We cannot act on isolated problems or resolve disputes between individual owners, dealers, or manufacturers.

We appreciate the report you provided. Reports from motorists are a very important source of information for us. Each report is analyzed and entered into a database to determine whether an investigation into a possible safety defect is warranted.

In your report you indicated you had problems having the corrective action completed with regard to NHTSA recall campaign No. 99V-045 (General Motors Corp. No. 99006) concerning the front seat recliner and since then the problem has been corrected. As mentioned above, we monitor the adequacy of manufacturers' recall campaigns; we would like to keep that report in our database to identify any safety defect trends that may require our attention.

Sincerely,

Alberto A. Jimenez, Chief
Correspondence Research Division
Office of Defects Investigation
