Dear [REDACTED]:

Thank you for your correspondence regarding your son's 2004 Mazda RX-8 vehicle. The New Jersey Office of the Attorney General forwarded your correspondence to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). The Office of Defects Investigation received your correspondence on February 21, 2006. Due to the limited resources available to this agency, we were not able to respond to you in a timelier manner. We regret any inconvenience our delay may have caused you.

NHTSA is the Federal agency responsible for improving safety on our Nation's highways. We are authorized to order manufacturers to recall and repair vehicles or items of motor vehicle equipment when our investigations indicate that they contain serious safety defects in their design, construction, or performance. We also monitor the adequacy of manufacturers' recall campaigns. In order for the agency to initiate an investigation, we look carefully at the body of consumer complaints and other available data to determine whether a defect may exist. We cannot act on isolated problems or resolve disputes between individual owners, dealers, or manufacturers.

We appreciate the report you provided and the report submitted by your husband on September 15, 2005. Reports from motorists are a very important source of information for us. Each report is analyzed and entered into a database to help us determine whether an investigation into a possible safety defect is warranted.

Problems associated with the failure of the engine starting up on 2004 Mazda RX-8 is not related to motor vehicle safety within the meaning of NHTSA's authorizing statute. If you have not done so, you may consider contacting your local Consumer Protection Agency and the Better Business Bureau. You may also ask your dealership for a meeting with Mazda's district manager regarding your problem.

If you do not have access to the Internet, please use the enclosed VOQ to inform this agency of any future motor vehicle or motor vehicle equipment safety problems you may experience.
