Subject: Unintended acceleration

I am certain this happened with my 2006 Mazda3. My car was only a few months old and I had backed out of a parking space to let another vehicle get out. The car ran into a lamp post and when I put it back into drive it lurched forward and accelerated through the path I had backed out of. I ran through the front window of a convenience store and did not stop until I crashed into the beverage cooler.
