All of this is fine – no edits needed.

Also, I wrote to the dealer about my frustration with the seat belt, that I filed a NHTSA complaint. I also complained to the service manager and pressed the team to focus on fixing the seat belt for good. The dealership did respond – it ordered and installed a new seat belt from California, and all seems fine now. Thank goodness.

However, I do think it's important for others to be aware of the second row seat belt issue. I'd hate for someone (especially a child) to have the seat belt fail during an accident.

Best,
