Honda is telling you a bold faced lie and even worse, committing perjury by telling you that there are no safety issues.

I have a 2009 Honda Civic Hybrid and it has not performed to the standards that Honda advertised. I noticed over time and even worse in the summer (a/c running), that the power is reduced to the point that it is almost dangerous to pull out into traffic. I recently had the IMA battery light come on, went to the dealership and the service writer suggested a software update, but after all this class action lawsuit business, i was worried that it would make things worse. Consequently, after i turned off car and then service writer turned "on" car, there were not any engine lights on or IMA lights on....weird...

But bottom line, this car IS NOT SAFE!!!

Sincerely,
