I had a car accident July 3, 2010 in which I was driving a 2010 Hyundai Elantra. My mother rented the car from Avis Rental Car Company. The next day I was driving home from the store when I was accelerating the 2010 Hyundai Elantra pulled to the left so I decided to pull into the right lane so if the car pulled again to the left I would not hit the curb. But as I was moving into the right lane something happened to the car to make me lose control of the car. I was only pulling into the left lane and the car malfunctioned to cause me to go left when I ^{had} turned the steering wheel so the ^{car} would go to the left.

The fact that I had alcohol in my system had nothing to do with the car going left when I turned the steering wheel so the 2010 Hyundai Elantra would go into the left lane.

* I found another 2010 Hyundai Elantra that did the same thing that I stated had happened to me. These 2010 Hyundai Elantra was also a rental car though the person had no alcohol in ~~there~~ system the 2010 Hyundai Elantras did the same exact thing; both cars pulled to the left when we were pulling into the right lane.

I need to ask if Hyundai Motor Company has issued a recall or statement concerning this problem or has there been any other complaints filed or civil suits against Hyundai Motor Company concerning this problem I have stated.

I could only find this civil suit :

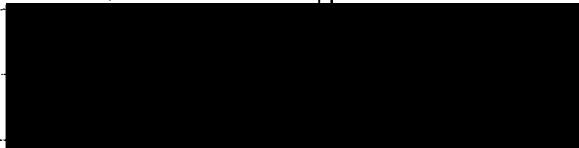

Pelas V EAN Holdings L.L.C
2012 WL 2339685

I realize that I may have had alcohol in my system but if the cars did the something, its not the person but the car that is malfunctioning. The other person could not stop their car and didn't have alcohol in their system.

Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated.

Thank you and God bless!

Sincerely

P.S. I had a letter forwarded to your office by the National Transportation Safety Board two week ago.
