Dear Sir

It is my understanding that my car, identified above, may have an airbag problem that could result in an inadvertent deployment, i.e., presenting a safety hazard.

My communication with your local dealership resulted in conflicting information. Once I was told that my car was not defective. Later, I received a letter from your office inquiring about the status of my vehicle which indicated, to me, that I may have a problem. And when I initiated a second follow-up with your local dealership, I was told that the necessary repair parts have not been provided to them.

This Jeep looks and drives like a new car, and I have driven it less than 12,000 miles. If there is a safety problem with it, I would like to fix it. I have enough problems coping with my octogenarian status, and I am interested in eliminating or minimizing all other problems that are not beyond the pale.

I would appreciate a written reply from your office to clarify this situation.

Sincerely,

[redacted]
