To Whom It May Concern

I'm writing on behalf of my grand daughter, [REDACTED]

In 2005 I bought a new 2005 Chevy Cobalt, she has the car now.

It greatly disturbs me to know that GMC knew a recall should of been in 2007 and they waited 7 more years after lives were lost is unacceptable.

I feel they put profit ahead of lives, What are their morals? What if it was one of their loved ones?
I want GMC held accountable and I feel they should have to buy the car back at top dollar so my granddaughter will have something safe to drive.

This is the 3rd recall, the dealers dont have replacements parts to repair the defect yet.

I've always felt they were an electrical problem, were always having to replace headlights or tail lights or signal lights bulbs.

I'll called and complained about the rims bending so easily, I bought new ones.

I wouldn't feel right to trade or sell the car.

As consumers are held accountable for our mistakes & wrongs & so should GMC.
Nothing will bring lives back.

I expect a response to this letter.

P.S. the car has low mileage.
