Dear Sir:

I was sent a Recall Letter from Toyota in Feb. 2017 about my 2011 Corolla Airbag inflator for the front passenger seat. There is no current remedy for this. My vin# 5TDBU4EE3B9 [REDACTED]

I would like to get a different car, or ~~but~~ would like to trade my car in, even up, on a newer car not listed in the re-call, for my in-convenience. Or get a better offer for my 2011 Toyota on a trade-in on a new car. I called the manufacturer and I can't get any satisfaction.

Toyota knew about the problem in March 2016.

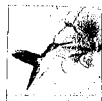

Should I file for a law suite, just to get manufacturers to do a better job and not give us junk.

No-one wants to take this car in as a trade-in and Toyota does not offer me a fair price. I don't believe that I can, even sell it until a remedy is done on it.

I think the American public should hold these manufacturers accountable!
