Report Submitted Date: 10/1/2017

Who You Are: Consumer

Incident Description: My car, a 1996 Nissan Sentra, lost all power while driving. No power steering, no power brakes, engine turned off. This has happened twice while driving, and numerous times when I go to start up the car and nothing happens.

It is caused by faulty intermittent open circuit at the E104 connector, which is located in the driver compartment on the back of the HEC = Hybrid Electric Control unit. The power wires labeled 1T and 2T both have intermittent open circuits.

The power wires on the E105 connector also have developed intermittent opens resulting in interior lighting of the instrument panel to flicker on an off.
