Good day,

I am writing about a very dangerous trend in new vehicles. I purchased a 2022 Jeep Compass last year that came without a spare tire. It came with an air pump with sealant. This would only work for a very minor and slow leak. I understand that manufacturers are too cheap to supply spare tires but not having them available to buy is criminal. There are very many places where cell phone signals are unavailable. This could result in drivers being stranded in dangerous locations such as freezing temps, deserts, crime ridden areas or dangerous animals just to name a few. I understand from the internet that numerous manufacturers are trending in this direction. In what world would any manufacturer think that not making spare tires available is ok.

Please do something if you can before people start to die from the consequences of not having a spare tire.

Thankyou,
