The following happened March 16, 2024, in Grand Junction, Colorado. My wife [REDACTED] and I, went to Goodwill. After leaving Goodwill, I backed out of my parking space, proceeded west, slowly making a right turn, and then another right turn. I saw a car approaching in the lane I wanted to enter, to exit Goodwill's parking lot. The approaching car, was at about my front bumper. I applied my brakes to allow it to pass. Two seconds later, the car was in front of me, and my Ford Expedition, was headed toward it. It crashed into the car without any action on my part, and severely damaged my Ford Expedition.

I have driven close to two million miles, and have never had a ticket, accident, or made an insurance claim. I am in no way demented, and am in virtually perfect health. My reflexes are superb, have never been arrested, done drugs of any kind, been intoxicated, or smoked. At the accident scene, a policeman asked me numerous questions, to be sure my mind was OK. He said it was.

There is no way I would crash my 2022 Ford Expedition into another car. Some Teslas are suddenly accelerating, and the cause is under investigation. Today, I got my Wall Street Journal, dated March 19th, with a headline reading, "FORD TECHNOLOGY IS PROBED IN DEADLY CRASH." A 2022 Ford, must have acted like a Tesla, crashing into the rear of another car, killing someone. Maybe Fords should also be investigated. I am sending a copy of this to NHSTA, as well as my insurance carried (State Farm). I am totally normal in every respect, since before the crash, or now. I will be willing to take any test of my mentality, mental condition, driving ability, reflexes, attitude, or any test, at any time. There is no way I could have caused that crash.
