NARRATIVE DESCRIPTION (CONTINUED)

When I drive for between one and two hours on a very hot and sunny day and I am forced to slow down due to traffic conditions my car simply dies.

I am forced to wait a few minutes before I am able to start up again. When I was driving on a very hot day on the Cross Bronx Expressway this forced stop occurred about five times until I reached the end of the jammed road.

This phenomenon only happened at the end of a fairly long drive on a very hot, sunny day when I slow down to make a turn or due to heavy traffic.
