Multiple reports of the same incident are also to be counted separately (i.e., a consumer complaint and a field report involving the same incident in which a crash occurred are to be counted as a crash report, a field report and a consumer complaint).

In addition, for items "c" through "f," provide a summary description of the alleged problem and causal and contributing factors and Bosch's assessment of the problem, with a summary of the significant underlying facts and evidence. For items "e" and "f," identify the parties to the action, as well as the caption, court, docket number, and date on which the complaint or other document initiating the action was filed.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 2:

Bosch has not received any complaints, reports, claims, lawsuits or arbitration proceedings responsive to Request No. 2.

REQUEST NO. 9:

Attachment: Robert Bosch Corporation's Response to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Request for Information
Reference NVS – 212MJ1 EA06-003

Identify and describe all components manufactured by, or on behalf of, Bosch that are involved in the deployment of the frontal air bags in the subject vehicles. Explain how these components interact with each other to determine the appropriate deployment times and inflation levels. For the air bag system as a whole, identify and describe any built-in fail-safe or redundancies that are designed to compensate for the loss of one or both frame rail-mounted front crash sensors.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 9:

Bosch sells the occupant restraint controller (“ORC”) and the subject components (referred to as “up front sensors”) for use in the subject vehicles. The ORC is mounted along the center axis of the vehicles, within the passenger compartment and under the front console. The up front sensors are mounted forward in the subject vehicles. The ORC contains an accelerometer that provides the primary data for making a deployment decision. The ORC gathers data that are inputs to an algorithm in the processor contained in the ORC.

The up front sensors are designed to complement the accelerometer internal to the ORC. The algorithm in the ORC will obtain accelerometer information from the up front sensors. If the up front sensors produce an output that exceeds a designed variable threshold, the ORC will recognize the data from the up front sensor and utilize the data in the deployment decision. However, the ORC does not require data from the up front sensors to deploy the air bags.

Attachment: Robert Bosch Corporation's Response to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Request for Information
Reference NVS – 212MJ1 EA06-003

In the current system, in the event that one of the up front sensors becomes inoperative, this condition will be recognized and logged by the diagnostics of the ORC. If one of the up front sensors becomes inoperative, the ORC will continue to utilize the data from the remaining up front sensor, but not from the inoperative up front sensor. If both up front sensors become inoperative, the ORC recognizes this condition and switches to a backup calibration. The ORC was originally released with software that switches to a backup calibration if either up front sensor becomes inoperative and does not utilize data from the up front sensors.

REQUEST NO. 11:

List and describe in detail all fault codes or diagnostic codes associated with a failure or malfunction of the subject components in the subject vehicles that could be stored in the air bag control module (i.e., Occupant Restraint Controller). State whether and how each such fault code can illuminate the air bag warning lamp intermittently, and whether and how it can illuminate the air bag warning lamp constantly. Also, describe the operation and functionality of a failed or affected front crash sensor while the air bag warning lamp is illuminating intermittently and while it is illuminating constantly.

RESPONSE TO REQUEST NO. 11:

There are two versions of the Occupant Restraint Controller ("ORC") modules that are utilized with the subject vehicles, an 8.7E and an 8.7+. In both versions, two fault or diagnostic codes associated with the up front sensors in the subject vehicles can exist. The two codes are a loss of communication and sensor internal.

Attachment: Robert Bosch Corporation's Response to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Request for Information

A loss of communication code is created if the up front sensor is unable to communicate with the ORC. This code can be caused by an inoperative up front sensor or a wiring fault. If such a condition exists, the ORC will send a message to illuminate the warning lamp and the ORC will continue to send a message to illuminate the warning lamp for the remainder of the ignition cycle. On the next ignition cycle the ORC will reevaluate the condition of the up front sensor. If the condition is not present, the ORC will send messages to turn the warning lamp off for the remainder of that ignition cycle, as long as the condition is not present. If the condition is present, the ORC will send messages to illuminate the warning lamp for the remainder of that ignition cycle. The operation and functionality of the loss of communication code is the same for both the 8.7E and 8.7+.

If a sensor internal fault is detected, the ORC will send a message to illuminate the warning lamp and the ORC will continue to send a message to illuminate the warning lamp for the remainder of the ignition cycle. On the next ignition cycle the ORC will reevaluate the condition of the up front sensor. If the condition is not present, the ORC will send messages to turn the warning lamp off for the remainder of that ignition cycle, as long as the condition is not present. If the condition is present, the ORC will send messages to illuminate the warning lamp for the remainder of that ignition cycle. The above operation and functionality of sensor internal fault code is the same for both the 8.7E and 8.7+. In vehicles equipped with 8.7E, if the sensor internal fault is detected on two consecutive ignition cycles, the ORC will continue to send messages to illuminate the warning lamp until the fault is cleared by a diagnostic tool. Vehicles equipped with 8.7+ will reevaluate the sensor internal fault at each and every ignition cycle.

In the current system, in the event that a fault is detected in one of the up front sensors, this condition will be recognized and logged by the diagnostics of the ORC. If one of the up front sensors is detected as inoperative, the ORC will continue to utilize the data from the remaining up front sensor, but not from the inoperative up front sensor. If both up front sensors become inoperative, the ORC recognizes this condition and switches to a backup calibration. The ORC was originally released with software that switches to a backup calibration if either up front sensor is inoperative and does not utilize data from the up front sensors.

REQUEST NO. 12:

List and describe in detail all restraint, crash and occupant data (e.g., air bag deployment status, deployed air bag inflator stages/levels, seat belt usage, vehicle deceleration, delta-V, occupant classification, air bag suppression status, etc.) stored by Occupant Restraint Controllers in the subject vehicles.

*Some PT Cruiser and / or Minivan parts may have been used as side sensors by DC. Bosch does not have the ability to differentiate within our shipping / billing records.

Bosch also understands that the Minivan and the Pacifica vehicles are both produced at the DC Windsor facility. Both vehicles have utilized the same part number in the up front location. Bosch does not have the ability to differentiate by vehicle usage for up front sensors shipped to Windsor Assembly Plant within our shipping / billing records.

 Bosch has utilized delivery numbers because it is the data within Bosch that most closely associates with the request for Lot Numbers.
