Brief Description:

Turn indicator not functioning properly, showing right turn when left is activated

Comments:

some times when I put my left turn signal on, it lights up my right side both inside indicators on dash and outside on lights. when this happens I have learned that the only way to activate the left turn signal is to activate the hazard switch. This will then activate only the left indicators and after a short while, it will reset the lights and everything will work normal. This has now happened twice in the past two weeks. If you are not paying attention to the indicators on the dash, you will be indicating the wrong turn, which could cause an accident. Is there a recall on this issue?
