 ACTION REQUIRED WHEN YOUR LEASE ENDS ***

Thank you for being a GM Financial customer. As you enter the final year of your lease, we want to ensure you have important information as you prepare for lease end.

To help you through your lease-end journey, we've shared information you need to know about the enclosed Federal Odometer Statement, which you'll need to complete when your lease agreement has ended. You can also download the Federal Odometer Statement by visiting <https://www.gmfinancial.com/odometer-statement>.

What's the Federal Odometer Statement?

The odometer statement is your disclosure of the mileage on the leased vehicle at the end of your contract. You're required by federal and some state laws to share this information as part of the transfer of ownership.

What should I do with the odometer statement?

Your action depends upon the lease-end option you choose:

Purchasing or returning to a GM dealership:

- Take the enclosed odometer statement with you to the dealership, and if you don't sign an odometer statement at the dealership, present this filled out form; see detailed instructions for filling out the statement.

Note: Your GM Financial lease agreement states that you have the option to buy your leased vehicle from a GM Financial designated party. We do not currently process lease purchase requests through non-GM dealerships.

Purchasing from GM Financial:

- See instructions on the enclosed odometer statement to send the completed odometer statement to us.

Note: Customers located in AZ, AR, CO, FL, HI, KS, NC, PA, SD, and VT can't purchase their vehicles directly from GM Financial; residents of these states will need to visit a GM dealership to purchase.

As you may remember from your lease agreement, if you return your vehicle, a disposition fee will be added to your lease-end liability invoice. However, if you lease or purchase a new GM vehicle or purchase your existing vehicle, the disposition fee may be waived. See your lease agreement for details. Please remember, you're responsible for paying any applicable taxes, tolls and/or tickets incurred during the lease term, regardless of the lease-end option you choose. For more information about the lease-end process, visit gmfinancial.com/LeaseEnd.

If you have questions about your account, log in to MyAccount or the GM Financial Mobile app to conveniently message our Customer Experience team. Or text* LEASEEND to 53721. You can also call us at 1-800-284-2271 during operating hours listed below:

Good morning,

I just reached out to the dealership and they told me the part is on backorder at the moment. They don't when things changed and don't have an ETA at the moment.
