

Subject: 2003 – 2006 FX35/45 Voluntary Recall Campaign Headlamps and Rear Combination Lamps – Update #3

To: Dealer Principal, Executive Manager, Sales, Service and Parts Managers

 Scrapping of FX Recall Campaign Headlamps and Tail Lamps *****

Recently, two Technical Service Bulletins (TSB) were released announcing a campaign to replace non-compliant headlamps and tail lamps on the FX35/45.

The procedural information in TSB ITB06-026 and ITB06-027 instructs dealers to immediately render the non-compliant lamps unusable by drilling. Once this procedure has been completed, there is a three day Warranty parts hold in effect before dealers are allowed to scrap the non-compliant lamps. After this three day period, the headlamps and tail lamps should be scrapped. The Xenon bulbs from the headlamps should be removed from the headlamps and disposed of in accordance to local and state regulations.

Under no circumstances should the non-compliant bulbs or lamps be re-used or sold for the purpose of installation on any vehicle.

We have been made aware that some of the non-compliant parts removed to accomplish these campaigns have appeared for sale on eBay. Dealers are advised again that these headlamps are not in compliance with applicable Federal Safety Regulations, that this type of activity is contrary to Infiniti policy, and exposes your dealership to potential civil liability and Federal enforcement action.

We trust that you understand our position on this matter and look forward to your continued cooperation.

Infiniti Parts & Service Operations
02/02/2007