May 21, 2007

Dear Coachmen Owner:

This notice is sent to you in accordance with the requirements of the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act.

Coachmen RV Company has decided that certain model year 2007-2008 Adrenaline Lite travel trailers fail to comply with requirements of Part 567, "Certification", and Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 110, "Tire Selection and Rims". The information provided on the certification and tire information labels denoting the tire pressure is incorrect.

Safety Defect

On affected vehicles, the information provided on the Certification and Tire Information labels affixed to the exterior of the unit contain incorrect information relating to tire pressure. These labels show a required tire pressure of 50 pounds per square inch (psi). The correct tire pressure, based on the tires used and the Gross Axle Weight Rating (GAWR) and Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR) is 65 psi. The tire load rating corresponds to the tire pressure. At 50 psi, the load rating (GAWR and GVWR) is below the value stated on the manufacturing labels. Should the tires be inflated to 50 psi, it is possible that the tires could be overloaded (based on the loading of the trailer) and fail, potentially resulting in a crash.

Repairs

Please take you unit promptly to your Coachmen dealer. At no charge to you, the Coachmen dealer will install the correct Certification and Tire Information labels and set the tire pressure to the required 65-psi. The necessary repairs should not take more than 30 minutes.
