What is the issue?

Under certain circumstances, fuel vapors can interact with hot gases and increase the risk of a fire. This condition is dependent on various factors, including overfilling the fuel tank combined with certain handling conditions that allow mistreated fuel vapors to combine with hot gasses, increasing the risk of a fire.

In case of fuel tank heavily overfilled and in particular handling conditions liquid fuel could reach the carbon canister and the purge valves, causing fuel vapors not treated properly. With not properly treated fuel vapor, particular maneuvers, as example engine over revving at idle, could imply contact between fuel vapor and hot gasses; especially if combined with a not approved aftermarket exhaust system, this could lead to risk of fire.

For safety reasons it is therefore necessary to upgrade these vehicles. If you are not the only driver of this vehicle, please advise all other drivers and passengers of this important information.
