Since filing the original Defect Information Report on April 5, 2018, Honda has confirmed that the affected vehicle population incorrectly included seventeen (17) 2018 model year Honda Pilot LX vehicles. These LX trim vehicles are originally equipped with driver and front passenger manual seats and the recall is specific to driver and front passenger powered seats assembled with improperly manufactured seat rivets. The identification of potentially affected vehicles and the total number of potentially affected vehicles are being amended to reflect this update.
