Lamborghini Gallardo (all models Coupé and Spyder) model year 2011 – 2014

“Engine software reflash”

■ What is the issue with the affected vehicles?

The affected vehicles might have followed a wrong procedure to perform the reflash of the engine software of the engine ECU. A not proper procedure may result in a system failure that does not store trouble codes after each key off, and consequentially warning lamps indicating system failures will cease to illuminate.

■ What is the cause of this condition?

The incorrect software installation procedure may result, in some conditions, in the inability to store system faults.

■ What effect does the condition have?

If the fault memory is erased after key off, warning lamps indicating system failures will cease to illuminate. Therefore, drivers could be lead to misunderstand the warning indications.

■ How can the condition be identified?

Cluster warning lights, that may appear while driving, are not anymore present if the car is turned off and then started again.
