Model S and Model X Driver Airbag Recall

T E S L A

Tesla has decided to proactively recall certain Model S and Model X vehicles for driver airbag replacement. This recall applies to certain Model S and Model X vehicles built in 2021 based on our manufacturing records. Our records indicate that your vehicle, <VIN>, may be affected by this recall.

During routine quality inspections we identified a potential issue with two driver airbags that may cause them not to deploy properly. All airbags from those lots were quarantined and discarded, however in an abundance of caution, we are recalling all other units from that manufacturing location. We are not aware of any injuries relating to this condition.

No immediate action is required if you own a Model S or Model X affected by this recall, and you may continue to drive your car. Tesla will contact you to schedule a service appointment when parts become available in your region and replace the driver airbag free of charge.

Thank you for your support, and we apologize for this inconvenience.
