Chronology :

Nov. 29, 2018: During a company wide review of rear impact guard certification plate procedures it was discovered that the Huntsville manufacturing facility may have produced some quantity of platform trailers with nonexempt rear impact guards without certification plates affixed to the rear impact horizontal.

Nov. 30, 2018 begin research to determine the potential population of affected trailers.

Dec. 6, 2018: File initial notice of defect on NHTSA portal

April 13, 2022 The NHTSA denied Great Dane's petition for wavier for this noncompliance issue being inconsequential to vehicle safety

April 26, 2022 Great Dane received an email from the NHTSA directing us to refile this issue as a new 22V recall.

April 29, 2022 Filed New initial notice of defect with the NHTSA

Description of Remedy :

Description of Remedy Program : Great Dane will supply RIG certification plates stamped with the trailer date of manufacture once it has been determined by a Great Dane authorized agent that the original rear impact guard is still attached to the trailer, and is in an unaltered state.

How Remedy Component Differs from Recalled Component : The original noncompliance was that the RIG certification plate had not been installed on certain trailers.

Identify How/When Recall Condition was Corrected in Production : In November of 2018 it was determined that Great Dane's Huntsville manufacturing facility had not installed RIG certification plate on certain trailers that required it. Trailers still at the plant were inspected and corrected before being shipped. Trailers since that date were completed with the required RIG certification plate.
