Chronology :

January 30, 2023 - Nissan received one (1) report of a dealer employee detecting a loose steering wheel on a Model Year 2023 Ariya vehicle. The investigation at the dealer found the steering wheel center bolt was missing.

February 8, 2023 – Nissan received a second report of a dealer employee detecting a loose steering wheel on another Model Year 2023 Ariya vehicle. The investigation at the dealer found the steering wheel center bolt was missing. Nissan launched an investigation and determined both vehicles had been included in a port modification activity to address potential quality concerns with the steering touch sensor prior to distribution. Both vehicles had been serviced by the same technician during the port modification activity.

February 11, 2023 – Nissan launched a dealer quality action to inspect the steering wheels on 418 Ariya vehicles in dealer inventory that were previously repaired as part of the port modification activity.

February 20, 2023 – The dealer action identified one (1) additional Ariya vehicle with a loose steering wheel out of a total 96 vehicles audited. Investigation determined that the incorrect torque had been applied to the affected steering wheel bolt during the port modification activity.

February 21, 2023 - Out of abundance of caution, Nissan decided to conduct a Voluntary Safety Recall to remedy all vehicles included in the port modification activity.

Nissan is not aware of any accident or injuries related to the subject condition.
