

Questions and answers: Lamborghini Huracan model year 2024 “High Beam May Not Activate”.

■ What is the issue with the affected vehicles?

The affected vehicles may fail to activate the high beam headlamp when the function is engaged. As such, these vehicles fail to comply with motor vehicle safety standards. All other headlight functions are guaranteed and not affected by this issue.

■ What is the cause of this condition?

During an internal rework, some vehicles may have wrongly skipped the basic settings configuration of the high beam headlights. In the absence of the basic setting, it is possible that an error will be registered in the Headlamp ECU which could cause the high beam to not activate when selected.

■ What effect does the condition have?

The pre-delivery inspections carried out by the dealers are highly likely to intercept and solve the issue before owners receive their cars. However, a possibility that some vehicles are delivered with the issue still remains. Inoperable high beam headlights may reduce visibility, increasing the risk of a crash.

■ How can the condition be identified?

The driver may not notice a change in illumination of the roadway when the high beam is activated.

Is there any risk for the car occupants?
