Defect / Noncompliance Description

Description of the defect or noncompliance:

Due to the calibration of the product level indicator, recline position 1 may be a mode of installation consistent with the product instructions in circumstances where that results in the dummy being more upright than is consistent with design intent. As a consequence, a dynamic test in recline position 1 with a twelve month old dummy conducted according the specifications of FMVSS 213b may yield results for chest g's and/or HIC scores exceeding the applicable regulatory requirement.

FMVSS1: 213 - Child restraint systems

FMVSS2:

Description of the safety risk, including crash, fire, death, injury:

Dynamic test results not meeting regulatory requirements indicate a heightened risk of injury in a crash when the product is installed in a manner analogous to the test setup conditions.

Description of the cause:

The design of the recline indicator, and particularly the placement of the pad print which is the visible indicator of recline to a caregiver (red/green), was not fully calibrated to product performance.

Identification of any warning that can occur:

A caregiver might observe that a child is more upright than anticipated. Otherwise, the condition is not apparent.

Chronology

May 26, 2026 - Evenflo received a notice from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Office of Vehicle Safety Compliance, that, in a compliance test conducted on a Revolve180 LiteMax NXT, model CS160412519 child restraint with the CRABI 12-month-old dummy installed in the rear-facing orientation with the detachable base and lower anchors, the test dummy's maximum calculated chest g's and HIC score exceeded regulatory requirements. Evenflo initiated an investigation.

July 3, 2026 - Evenflo responded that its investigation was ongoing, but that the recline position of the tested seat appeared potentially relevant, particularly in light of a change to the recline indicator in March of 2025 (subsequent to the date of manufacture of the tested seat).

July 30, 2026 - Evenflo decided that a potential non-compliance existed in certain Revolve180 LiteMax NXT infant seats manufactured prior to implementation of the change in the recline indicator.

Description of Remedy

Remedy Type: Repair

Consumer Advisories: ☐ Do Not Drive ☐ Park Outside

Description of remedy program:

Part 573 Safety Recall Report

26C005

Evenflo will provide the owners of products within the recall population who registered their seats or for which Evenflo otherwise has contact information with a remedy kit to address the identified noncompliance. While the remedy remains under development, it will involve providing either a means to correct the inaccuracy of the current recline indicator or an alternative means by which consumers can verify installation at proper recline.

How remedy component differs from recalled component:

While the remedy component(s) remain under development, the relevant difference will be that the indication of recline provided will be better calibrated to promote installation consistent with the safety performance of the product (as measured by regulatory requirements).

Identify how/when recall condition was corrected in production:

On or about March 20, 2025, Evenflo implemented a change to the recline indicator such that recline position 1 would no longer be indicative of proper installation on an FMVSS 213b test bench or a vehicle seat analogous to an FMVSS 213b test bench.
