Your vehicle may be affected by increased engine oil temperature that may degrade lubrication, potentially causing bearing seizure that may lead to engine damage and potentially engine failure. In certain cases, a bearing failure may cause a breach in the engine block, allowing hot oil to be discharged, increasing the risk of an engine fire.

Your Nissan dealer will reprogram the Engine Control Module (ECM) with updated software designed to monitor engine performance. After the reprogramming is completed, your Nissan dealer will complete a specific drive cycle to determine whether there are any Diagnostic Trouble Codes (DTCs) for your engine. The reprogramming process and DTC check should take approximately one (1) hour to complete. However, depending upon the dealer's work schedule, your Nissan dealer may require additional time to complete.

If a specific DTC is detected after the reprogramming and drive cycle are completed on your vehicle, the dealer will replace the engine.
