Team,

See the new aluminum wheel portfolio attached. We are getting stocked up and will be able to start taking orders for these by Monday of the coming week (except for one of the delux models).

As noted in the pdf, the top 2 styles will be 100% on-site stocked, in all tire/wheel sizes. The middle styles, although not being our primary stock, are available with a minor (2-3 day) lead time with no additional charges. The bottom group will also be available, but require additional inbound freight costs on our end, so they will have a surcharge of $20 and a higher (1-2 week) lead time.

The T08MBML (Matte Black) is currently delayed from our supplier, so that specific wheel will need a few additional weeks

We are going to see how this goes, offering multiple choices on alum wheels. Once we have a chance to see the customer reponse and volumes by model type, we may alter the program some in the future.

Chris will be sending an email soon giving you the TA numbers and descriptions and any other needed information. On another note, you are going to start seeing the new Tredit bias tire any day and you will like it. It looks like a real tire, like a Loadstar, instead of a Karrier Star.

Remember, the new program comes with the Roadside assistance from Tredit if a spare tire and mount is ordered.
