Subject	Regarding Honda's Release of Information Related to Takata Lawsuits

Today, Honda released a statement and detailed background information related to actions it took this week in the consolidated class actions related to Takata airbag inflators. The full text is below. While you may see some negative contentions from plaintiffs' attorneys in related media stories, you can be crystal clear about this fact: Any suggestion by plaintiffs' lawyers or their surrogates that Honda concealed the cause of field ruptures of Takata airbag inflators installed in Honda vehicles is completely false and misleading.

If your associates or customers express concerns related to this issue, based on an incomplete picture of the facts, please provide them with this link (<http://hondaairbaginfo.com/honda-actions-in-relation-to-class-action-lawsuit/>), where they can find a full accounting of the issue along with actual copies of key documents that we released today.

Additionally, if you receive any media inquiries about this issue (not customer inquiries), please direct them to Chris Martin in Honda Public Relations at Chris_Martin@ahm.honda.com.
