TIP #1

Windows getting you cranky?

Struggling to open and close your crank out awning windows? Try this: lubricating the tracks can extend the life of the gear mechanism saving you time, money and stress. This will keep it moving freely with less effort at a moment's notice when air flow is needed. Depending on how often you open up your windows, when you service them, be sure to wipe out the tracks with a cloth to remove dirt and oil build up. A spray silicone sealant or even some white lithium automotive grease is the easiest way to maintain the tracks that the arms lock into.
