Technical Background

For concerns where the remote will unlock the doors but will not lock the doors or arm the alarm, check if the Electronic Steering Column Lock (ESCL) has either been replaced or updated recently.

Service

If you suspect that the Steering Column Lock has either been replaced or updated recently:

- Check the coding in the ESCL control module -J764- to ensure that it is correct.

This can be performed through either GFF, under address 2B, or through SVM by selecting 2B under the code control module selection.

Once the GFF test plan has been completed:

- Verify that the ESCL has been coded.

If the procedure fails:

- Use GFF paperless to retrieve a base line coding of the module and code the module manually using OBD.
