Condition	Some customers may comment that a metallic hiss or rattle type noise can be heard coming from the front of the vehicle. Some technicians may notice: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The noise is present at all speeds, but is most noticeable at low speed driving with some throttle input. The noise is present in all gears and is a constant frequency even with increasing engine speed.
Cause	This condition may be caused by the transmission range selector lever cable transmitting excessive noise.
Correction	If the noise has been verified to be coming from the shift cable, replace the cable with a new design cable that has added mass for noise dampening.

GM bulletins are intended for use by professional technicians, NOT a "do-it-yourselfer". They are written to inform these technicians of conditions that may occur on some vehicles, or to provide information that could assist in the proper service of a vehicle. Properly trained technicians have the equipment, tools, safety instructions, and know-how to do a job properly and safely. If a condition is described, DO NOT assume that the bulletin applies to your vehicle, or that your vehicle will have that condition. See your GM dealer for information on whether your vehicle may benefit from the information.
