a issue with 4 brand new 2020 new cascadia in our shop, cab air bags leaning. passenger side air bag leaning towards the outside of frame, driver side leaning backwards. I know with the old cascadia you were able to loosen the mount and align it. there is absolutley no play with these new mounts. i know its a pitty issue but should not be like that. will upload pictures here soon.

VIN?

Kind of looks like the brackets are bent but hard to tell by the pictures. I would get CSC involved to see what they say. They might just let it go unless it presents problems. Its kind of like the Airliner suspensions when the air springs look out of alignment.

Defiently out of shape, BOTH or mounting is off .. brackets might be made incorrect, Check another rig? not the other four of course.!!

Jon Cecil is correct need a VIN. I used a VIN for a P4. The mounting brackets for the Cab air bags are bent. They need to be replaced. But need to find out what is the cause. How did this happen.

During transport? I have seen a couple of Wester Stars come in decked before with the cab suspensions empty. possibly beating on the mounts going down the road. I'll have to pay more attention to the new trucks coming in around me.

Check for a recall on this unit. I know I have done a couple of recalls for cab air bag mounts. A VIN would be nice.
