2017 Westernstar 5700EX - Blown F19 Fuse - Loss of Dash Lights Dec 21, 2017 2:08 PM

We have had this 17 Westernstar 5700ex comeback on multiple occasions with these symptoms: Blown F19 Fuse, Loss of Dash lights, Loss of steering wheel controls. We've found an issue with a wire rub through on the steering wheel column, didn't fix the issue. We tested voltage on PDM, we have 12.4V. Has anyone ran into same scenario? Any ideas?

look the harness over real good. I have seen were a screw for mounting has gone through the harness. It maybe a ECC issue.

I know you have done it but really inspect that steering Colum harness, I have seen this exact issue with a bad steering wheel harness. Also, I have had dash light issues that related to the harness rubbed together where it goes into the hood wiring. It rubs on the hood fiber glass and then they arc the wires together. right where the harness "T" for right and left head lights

Thank you both for the ideas, after extensive diagnostic, we determined it was the ECC that was causing the intermittent issues with the loss of Dash lights, Blown F19 Fuse, Loss of steering wheel controls, and hazards working but not turn signals. Another contributing factor is what Kelowna Service stated, during the diagnosis of this issue, there were multiple wires found under that dash with minor rubs and rub through.
