PTU LEAK AND ODOR

20MY – Onward RR Evoque,
Discovery Sport

Customer Voice:

- There is an odor from the car that is sometimes perceived as a fuel smell.

Technical Description:

- The odor is identified to be from the PTU.
- Evidence of a leak from the breather or overheat may be present.

Status:

- SSM 74970 is published for this concern.
- If clear evidence of a leak or overheat is present, a FRED is required to obtain authorization for replacement. Include pictures of the leak and pictures of each wheel/tire fitted to the vehicle with the tire size clearly visible in the picture.
- If the odor is identified as coming from the PTU without evidence of a leak, perform a flush of the PTU and re-evaluate.
- If the odor persists after a flush of the PTU, raise a TA for diagnostic support.
