

New Release

We are excited to announce our new polymer snap-in aisle strips as standard equipment for all TBB products. This new design provides a smoother, more modern finish with seamless aisle strip caps running the length of the vehicle floor. Snap in polymer aisle strips are comprised of two main components. First, a base piece is secured to the floor with the floor covering placed adjacent to the base piece. Next, the top cap snaps down into the base material securing the floor covering in place. No additional fasteners are used in the length of aisle strip that runs from front to rear of the vehicles.

In addition to being resistant to corrosion, the new snap-in aisle strip has been thoroughly tested for retention and reliability.

With this release, we are discontinuing the standard Galvalume and Aluminum aisle strip options from our data book. Bid specifications requiring metal aisle strips should be configured with our stainless steel aisle strip options.

This change in standard equipment will be effective on all new orders that are received on 8/15/21 and later. There are no direct base price changes as a result of this update.

- See table below for sales code status effective 8/15/21
- Customers can choose between the new standard snap-in aisle strip code or upgrade to stainless steel aisle strips
  - Stainless steel options are B152401000 for Transit and Minotour vehicles and D601403000 for C2 vehicles
